Critical Thinking on Youth Participatory Action Research

Participation, Power, and Purpose

Edited by Gretchen Brion-Meisels, Thomas Albright

This book illuminates critical thinking on the past, present, and future of youth participatory action research (YPAR). In this critical moment, it shows how to better understand those who have been central to the visioning and enacting of YPAR projects, and it examines the fundamental tenets and boundaries of their work. Showcasing new interviews with leaders in the field, this volume builds on the centrality of dialogue in PAR/YPAR processes. Elucidating the knowledge and perspective of leading YPAR practitioners, this timely book will be crucial reading on Research Methods and Education courses for Participatory Action Research programs and related courses.

Video-Based Action Research

A Guide to Incorporating Video Analysis Into Reflective Practice for Teacher Development

Kimberly Lebak

This book introduces the use of video analysis into the popular educational research model of action research. Video analysis has become increasingly common in teacher development for reflective practice, as well as within the teacher certification process as an assessment tool. A 'how-to' guide, it brings the theoretical and practical together to show teachers how video can be a concrete artifact for unpacking and reflecting on the complexities inherent in educational contexts. This book is ideal for use by teachers at all stages of their careers, including pre-service teachers just embarking on their careers and in-service teachers looking to examine and improve their practices.

Academic Freedom in Higher Education

Core Value or Elite Privilege?

Edited by Maria Slowey, Richard Taylor Wolfson College Cambridge, UK

This timely book explores the challenges facing universities and individual scholars through an examination of the history and theory underlying the concept of academic freedom. It will be of interest to staff and students across higher education and to members of the general public, who are puzzled by and trying to grapple with a growing and divisive issue that shows no signs of diminishing.

Forty Years of the International Journal of Lifelong Education, Volume II

Insights on Published Research

Edited by John Holford University of Nottingham, UK, Steven Hodge, Marcella Milana University of Verona, Italy, Elizabeth Knight, Richard Waller, Sue Webb Monash University, Australia

Over the last forty years, the International Journal of Lifelong Education has become a global leader in the field of research on adult education and lifelong learning. Drawing extensively on articles published in the journal, scholars from Africa, Asia, North and South America, Australasia and Europe reflect in two volumes on how the field has evolved over four decades, and on the strengths and weaknesses of its contributions to knowledge. The second of two volumes, this book is based on a collective research project, carried out largely by members of the journal's editorial advisory board, on what it has published over four decades.

Forty Years of the International Journal of Lifelong Education, Volume I

Reflections on a Changing Field

Edited by John Holford University of Nottingham, UK, Steven Hodge, Marcella Milana University of Verona, Italy, Richard Waller, Sue Webb Monash University, Australia

Over the last forty years, the International Journal of Lifelong Education has become a global leader in the field of research on adult education and lifelong learning. Drawing extensively on articles published in the journal, scholars from Africa, Asia, North and South America, Australasia and Europe reflect in two volumes on how the field has evolved over four decades, and on the strengths and weaknesses of its contributions to knowledge. The first of two volumes, this book offers rich insights into the nature of lifelong education, its development over the forty years of the journal (and more), and what challenges the field will be called upon to address in the future.

Lived Experience, Lifelong Learning, Community Activism and Social Change

Edited by Sharon Clancy University of Nottingham, UK, Iain Jones University of Wales Trinity St David, UK

This book identifies and celebrates the learning adult educators can gain from the numerous sites of community activism, learning, and social change that are currently taking place across the globe. Each chapter and blog in this collection relate to different dimensions of community, democracy and dialogue and how this space has become one in which delimiting factors must constantly be fought. In these contributions, questions of critical pedagogy and voice, and contested notions of power, place and voice, are lived, felt and troubled in different national and international contexts. This book was originally published as a special issue of Studies in the Education of Adults.

The Mentor-Disciple Relationship in the Visual Arts and Beyond

Mentoring as Human Nurturing

Gaetano A. LaRoche

Series: Routledge Research in Arts Education

This book undertakes a deep examination of mentor and disciple relationships in the development of artists. It draws upon a variety of relationships and models, including an in-person mentor, a mentor or apprentice scenario, and non-physical mentors such as historical figures, in order to investigate their history and philosophy. Using artists' biographies and discussions of their work, this book sheds light on the role that mentoring has played in their development and can play in contemporary education. It will appeal to artists, art history teachers, educators, art students, and art scholars.

Building Asset-Based Transitions to Postsecondary Education with Multilingual Students with Disabilities

Edited by Audrey A. Trainor, Lindsay E. Romano, Lynn A. Newman

This important volume presents the results from a five-year, mixed methods study on the transition from high school to postsecondary education for young adults who, during secondary school, received both English learner and special education services. With a focus on equitable, culturally sustaining transition research and practice, the book informs graduate students, researchers, and teacher educators about how to mitigate the effects of historical marginalization, increasing our collective understanding of intersectional experiences and how they shape young adults' choices as they leave high school and move into young adulthood.

Building Disciplinary Literacies in Content and Language Integrated Learning

Edited by Julia Hüttner University of Vienna, Austria, Christiane Dalton-Puffer University of Vienna, Austria

Series: Routledge Series in Language and Content Integrated Teaching & Plurilingual Education

Hüttner and Dalton present research demonstrating the tangible benefits of long-term sustainability of Content and Language Integrated Learning (CLIL) on participants' educational outcomes. This book argues that the specific benefit of CLIL is that learners acquire specific literacy practices linked to the curricular subjects they study via the CLIL language and that these go beyond what is commonly learned and studied within a foreign language curriculum. The various chapters showcase research and development projects from different geographical and educational contexts. A useful reference for graduate students studying applied linguistics, language teachers and teacher trainers.

Curriculum Fragments

A Curriere Journey through Life Processes

Thomas S. Poetter Trinity University With

Series: Studies in Curriculum Theory Series

This book builds upon Louise Berman's late 20th century framing of life processes to inform school curriculum, by proposing a new curriculum project that extends and reframes Berman in and beyond schooling. Focusing on real life experiences in school and life that have educational implications and that can inform the curriculum, the field of curriculum studies, and the act of curriculum theorizing, this book will appeal to curriculum scholars interested in using curriere, understanding patterns of use, participating in the production of curriculum and educational knowledge in the field, and perceiving and using curriculum theorizing as an integral part of their daily work.

Early Childhood and the Asian American Experience

Exploring Intersectionality and Addressing Misrepresentations

Sohyun Meacham , Su-Jeong Wee , Jinhee Kim , Sophia Han , Wu-Ying Hsieh

This essential and urgent book presents research-based understandings about Asian American early childhood, bringing to light the battle Asian Americans face against American nativism from their early years' experiences. The first of its kind in academic literature, the book addresses the well-known issue of underrepresentation of Asian Americans in early childhood education research and practice, and in American society in general. This book is key reading for early childhood education researchers, professors, and graduate students to become more productively engaged in discussions and practices toward racial justice.

2ND EDITION

Encounters with Materials in Early Childhood Education

Veronica Pacini-Ketchabaw Western University, Canada
Sylvia Kind Capilano University, Canada, Laurie L. M. Kocher Capilano University, Canada

This text rearticulates understandings of materials—blocks of clay, sheets of paper, brushes and paints—to formulate new ideas about what happens when we think with materials and apply them to early childhood development and classrooms. Updated to include choreographies with fabrics and the process of repatriation with plastics, this second edition shows how educators, young children, and researchers have explored what materials are capable of in their encounters with other materials and with children. The book is key reading for undergraduate students, graduate students, and pre-service teachers in early childhood education and art education programs.

How the Roles of Early Childhood Caregivers and Educators Came To Be Marginalized

The Influences of Gender and Race, Developmental Psychology, and Public Policy

Stacie G. Goffin

This book examines how the influences of gender, race, developmental psychology, and public policy affect the development, status, and standing of Early Childhood Care and Education (ECCE) as a field of practice. In order to understand how ECCE has been externally and internally marginalized, Goffin traces the field's origins and its evolution over time. The book calls attention to the racial and gender makeup of the field, its reliance on psychology, and the contribution of public policy to the field's low prestige. This work is ideal for early childhood care and education graduate faculty and students, educators, and caregivers who want to know more about their history.

Constructivist Teaching by Heart

A Child-Centered Approach for Educators, PreK-3

Krista Wallden, Dana McMillan

This insightful book offers a modern take on the time-honored tradition of developmentally appropriate, child-centered, constructivist philosophy of instruction: Teaching children one at a time, yet all at once. The book provides a comprehensive road map to teaching that supports student engagement, child development, classroom environment, grouping and organization, authentic literacy instruction, and culturally informed practices. The authors push back against scripted curriculums and 'one-size-fits-all' school initiatives, offering instead rich examples and guiding questions to bring you closer to an authentic teaching approach that honors students and their learning.

Community-based Transformational Learning in Early Childhood Settings

Integrating Experiences of Teachers, Students, and the Community

Edited by Christian Winterbottom, Vickie E. Lake, Adrien Malek-Lasater

This comprehensive, research-based resource illuminates the challenges and benefits of integrating community-based transformational learning (CBTL) experiences of teachers, students, and the community in early childhood settings. Balancing historical context with theoretical underpinnings, ongoing research, and current practice, this multi-authored volume demystifies the praxeology of CBTL. It uses annotated case studies to explore the importance of considering contextual factors that may influence what early-years students gain from CBTL experiences, and it encourages a community dialogue to support students' confidence in their own capacity to make a better world for all people.

Gender and Power in Early Childhood Education in Indonesia

Vina Adriany Universitas Pendidikan Indonesia

Series: Evolving Families

Adriany explores gender discourses in early childhood education in Indonesia, as well as how teachers and children are engaged in the process of constructing, negotiating and resisting dominant gender discourses in kindergartens. The findings of this book show the extent to which early childhood education becomes a space for the teachers and children to construct, negotiate, as well as resist dominant gender discourses in kindergartens. Offering insights into local and global contexts that shape gender values in early years, this book will be a valuable reference for researchers, scholars and students in early childhood education, gender studies, and comparative education.

Reimagining the Role of Teachers in Nature-based Learning

Helping Children be Curious, Confident, and Caring

Rachel Larimore, Claire Warden

Learn how to integrate nature-based pedagogy in this practical and inviting book. Nature-based teaching is getting more attention in early childhood education settings and can positively impact the development of young children's curiosity, confidence, and care. You'll learn to not only identify but also embody the many roles teachers play when implementing nature-based strategies. Chapters lay out the research and theory behind each role, specific language or behaviors of what that role looks like in practice, and reflexive questions to help educators reflect on their practice.

The Creative Art of Troublemaking in Education

Frank Coffield

Drawing on a lifetime's experience and research in education, Frank Coffield brings together some of his previously published papers to assess the impact of a wide range of national educational policies and to examine the role of the state in public education. He concludes that damage has been done to education by political parties of both right and left and that it will not be reversed unless significant change is made such as addressing poverty and reducing the powers of the state. An essential read for anyone in education, this provocative criticism of our past and current educational 'system' provides an accessible as well as a humorous critique of educational policy and politics.

Gaslighting School Educational Policy in a Post-Truth World

Systems, Schools and Society

Grant Rodwell The University of Newcastle, Australia

Series: Routledge Research in Education Policy and Politics

Focusing on current educational systems in the US, UK, and Australia, Grant Rodwell examines the politics of gaslighting within school educational policy and how this links to political motives in a post-truth world. Using sustained comparative description and analysis, Rodwell provides up-to-date research on how gaslighting impacts school educational policy. As gaslighting is a complex term, the book gives a framework of how to comprehend it relative to school educational topics and issues. This book will be a foundational resource for tertiary institutions, educational policy students and researchers, politicians and parents concerned with gaslighting policies and practices.

2ND EDITION

Inventions of Teaching

A Genealogy

Brent Davis, Angus McMurtry

This updated edition of Inventions of Teaching presents an examination of the many and varied metaphors of teaching in English. These metaphors serve as sites to excavate conflicting historical, conceptual, and philosophical influences that have contributed to modern teaching practices. This book is an informative text for senior undergraduate and graduate courses in curriculum studies and foundations of teaching. It is also relevant for students, faculty, and researchers across the field of education who want to explore the consequences of diversities of opinion, belief, and practice concerning teaching and closely related topics of learning, knowing and formal education.

A Paradigm Shift for Language Education

Project-Based Learning and Teaching

Gulbahar H. Beckett University of Cincinnati, US

Series: Routledge Research in Language Education

This book investigates the argument for the significance and necessity of project-based learning and teaching (PBLT) as it becomes increasingly important in language education. It explores the research foundations and the historical and theoretical antecedents of PBLT, articulating the application of project-based learning and teaching as a valuable approach for second language education pedagogy and research. Utilizing qualitative classroom research, it then moves to address key concerns surrounding the difficulties of effectively implementing PBLT with existing curriculum and keeping track of content acquisition, cognitive and social skills development, and language learning.

K-12 Classroom Research in Language Teaching and Learning

Narratives for Understanding and Engaging in Teacher Research

Edited by Kate Mastruserio Reynolds, Khanh-Duc Kuttig

Series: Routledge Research in Language Education

This edited volume presents narratives on a range of methods for research on second language teaching and learning appropriate to the elementary, middle, and high schools (K-12). Teacher researchers in different worldwide contexts narrate their processes to explain and demonstrate practitioner research in context; contributors describe their research from exploring the rationale for the project, to designing the study, analyzing the data, and disseminating it. The book illustrates how K-12 practitioners design, gather, analyze, interpret, and strategically employ data to make data-driven, evidence-based, and analysis-informed instructional, assessment and programmatic decisions.

Literacies in Times of Disruption

Living and Learning During a Pandemic

Bronwyn T. Williams University of Louisville

The wide-ranging disruptions of the COVID-19 pandemic altered the experiences of place, technology, time, and school for students. This book explores how students' responses to these extraordinary times shaped their identities as learners and writers, as well as their perceptions of education. In a time when disruptions, including but not limited to the pandemic, continue to ripple and resonate through education and culture, this book provides important insights for researchers and teachers in literacy and writing studies, education, media studies, and any seeking a better understanding of students and learning in this precarious age.

In Community With Readers

Transforming Reading Instruction with Read-Alouds and Minilessons

Lynsey Burkins, Franki Sibberson

What is the true purpose of whole-group reading instruction? Is it possible to teach standards and skills while also creating a community in which students are free to bring their whole selves into the work of reading? How do we make this an everyday reality in grades 3-6 classrooms? Lynsey Burkins and Franki Sibberson answer these questions and more in In Community with Readers: Transforming Reading Instruction with Read Aloud and Minilessons. In this book, Burkins and Sibberson push back on the idea that whole-group reading instruction must be teacher-centered skill and drill and instead offer us a way to create a truly meaningful whole-group reading community.

Mediation as Negotiation of Meanings, Plurilingualism and Language Education

Edited by Bessie Dendrinos

Series: Routledge Research in Language Education

This edited collection considers the theory and practice of mediation in plurilingual education. Bringing together the voices of scholars from European universities who are also experienced language teacher educators, contributing authors present their research in classrooms and other multilingual environments, consider the data collected critically and offer concrete suggestions for the development of language learners' ability to mediate within and across languages. This book makes the case for why mediation constitutes a key competence to be developed for active global and local citizenry in today's societies where there is an increased rate of knowledge acquisition and exchange.

Teaching and Supporting Students with Disabilities During Times of Crisis

Culturally Responsive Best Practices from Around the World

Edited by Pavan Antony, Stephen Shore

This volume offers international perspectives on the disproportionate impact Covid-19 has had on disabled students and their families, serving as a call to action for educational systems and education policy to become proactive, rather than reactive, for future disasters. Each chapter in the book is written by authors with lived experiences across diverse global regions, highlighting the daily life of people with disabilities and their families during the pandemic. Including case studies and practical suggestions, the book demonstrates that culturally responsive practices are essential to successfully support people around the world in their times of need.

The Therapeutic School Approach

How to Embed Trauma-Informed, Attachment-Aware Practices to Improve Outcomes for All Children

Shahana Knight

This book offers a step-by-step guide to embedding a trauma-informed teaching approach that is tangible and practical. It highlights practices which can create disconnection with children and explores underpinning key theory, from childhood trauma to the power of the environment. This whole school approach gives readers the tools and practical strategies needed to support children when they are dysregulated by reframing 'difficult' behaviour and focusing on emotional intelligence and self-regulation. It is essential reading for primary school teachers, head teachers, SENCOs, and support staff who want to put children's wellbeing at the core of their practice.

The Secret Life of SENCOs

Practical Insights on Inclusion and Specialist Provision

Adam Boddison nasen, UK, Maxine O'Neill

Series: nasen spotlight

Only two roles are statutorily required in maintained schools, the Headteacher and the SENCO, and of these, only the SENCO is required to be a qualified teacher, demonstrating just how vital SENCOs are. But being the SENCO can be a lonely role as there is typically only one per school, so it is not always easy to know how SENCOs in other schools are undertaking the role. The Secret Life of SENCOs will transform how you deliver the SENCO role by combining the benefit of hindsight with the luxury of insight, to provide the privilege of foresight. It is a valuable resource for both new and experienced SENCOs, as well those considering beginning in the role.

Choice Words

How Our Language Affects Children's Learning

Peter Johnston

The first edition quickly became a bestseller and impacted countless educators and students. Peter Johnston provided educators with examples of language usage that are pivotal in the orchestration of the classroom: how and what we say (and don't say) impact what children learn and for who they become. In the new edition, Peter Johnston returns to the message that teachers' language is a powerful tool for improving children's learning and classroom community. This book has much to offer to both new and first edition readers with updated research, new classroom examples, and additional chapters on social emotional learning and mindsets.

Teaching Higher-Order Thinking to Young Learners, K-3

How to Develop Sharp Minds for the Disinformation Age

Steffen Saifer

To be truly educated today, students need more than knowledge; they need higher-order thinking skills. Critical and creative thinking is required to recognize and counter disinformation, to overcome thinking errors, and for success in school and life. To effectively teach these skills, we must start early, when young minds are still forming. While K-3 students are capable of higher-order thinking, most lessons only engage their lower-order thinking. In this comprehensive book based on sound science, Dr. Saifer offers many practical and engaging ways to develop students' logical, critical, and creative thinking skills in nearly every lesson, in all subject areas, throughout the day.

Where Is the Teacher?

The 12 Shifts for Student-Centered Environments

Kyle Wagner

Kids today can learn more from a YouTube video or AI chatbot than they can from a full day of lectures. So what is our role as classroom teachers? In this groundbreaking book, seasoned educator Kyle Wagner explains the new role of the teacher in the 4th industrial revolution. Chapters cover how to shift from a content-based to inquiry-based approach, develop relevant interdisciplinary skills, cultivate meaningful student reflection, curate beautiful real-world work, facilitate student-led discussion, and more. Through stories from real student-centered classrooms, you will come away ready to unleash student creativity, build thoughtful inquirers, and develop self-directed learners.

Equitable Education and Ghettoized Voices

A Deficit Ideology of Poverty in The Caribbean

June A. Douglas

Series: Routledge Research on Educational Equity in Developing Nations

This book centres the voices of a group of marginalized residents in Grenada's ghetto to examine questions of poverty and survival and how, within this context, residents are able to focus on improvement and equity for their children through education. A cutting analysis of the development of equity through education in states left behind by colonialism and globalisation, this book offers new understandings of survival and criminality caused by deficit poverty. It will appeal to scholars, faculty, and researchers with interests in international education, education and globalisation, small island states, life course theory, systems theory, and anthropology.

Fluency Doesn't Just Happen in Multiplication and Division

Strategies and Models for Teaching the Basic Facts

Nicki Newton, Ann Elise Record, Alison J. Mello

Fluency in math doesn't just happen! It is a well-planned journey. In this book, you'll find practical strategies and activities for teaching your elementary students basic multiplication and division facts. The authors lay out a framework for building math fluency using a cycle of engagement (concrete, pictorial, abstract) and provide a multitude of examples illustrating the strategies in action. A final chapter devoted to action plans will help you put these strategies into practice in your classroom right away. Most importantly, you'll open the door to deep and lasting math fluency.

10TH EDITION

Deculturalization and the Struggle for Equality

A Brief History of the Education of Dominated Cultures in the United States

Joel Spring Queens College, USA

Series: Sociocultural, Political, and Historical Studies in Education

Joel Spring's history of school policies imposed on dominated groups in the United States examines the concept of deculturalization—the use of schools to strip away family languages and cultures and replace them with those of the dominant group. Revised throughout to reflect the national events and shifts in the field since the prior edition, the 10th Edition includes updated discussion around race and its impacts on college campuses, exploration of the refugee crises, new material on Native American, Alaskan, and Hawaiian boarding schools, and expanded discussion of debates over cultural and racial identity.

Dismantling Orientalist Representations in US Education

Schooling and Otherness in the Social Studies Classroom

Daniel Osborn Boston University, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Decolonizing Education

This book examines the evolving role played by the social studies classroom in shaping national identity and contributing to Orientalism, which depicts the peoples of the Middle East as "the Other" relative to those of the United States and Europe. A novel and unique exploration of knowledge construction, and presenting a vision for a more nuanced and multifaceted portrayal of the Middle East that corrects for the deleterious aspects of Orientalism while avoiding a romanticized apologetic, it will appeal to scholars, researchers and educators with interests in decolonizing education, social studies education, the history of education, and race and ethnicity studies.

Making Space for Cultural Equality in Educational Leadership

School Ethos and Postcolonial Pedagogy

Mathew Barnard Keele University, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Decolonizing Education

This book foregrounds postcolonial theory as a lens through which to explore the concept of 'global heritage' and argues that the meso-level spaces of institutional ethos and cultural pedagogy must take an active role in the pursuit of cultural equality. This book will appeal to scholars, researchers, and post-graduate researchers in the fields of multicultural education, school leadership, management and administration, and education policy and politics more broadly. Those interested in social justice, ideas of cultural and racial equality, and the sociology of education more broadly will also benefit from the volume.

Pedagogies of Widening Participation in Medical Settings

Addressing Under-representation through Partnership and Professionalism

Edited by Louise Allridge University of Plymouth, UK

Series: Contemporary Pedagogies of Medical and Health Professions' Education

Addressing the fact that under-representation has been a concern for medical educators, medical councils, and the government for some time, this book presents the first evidence-based monograph for pedagogies that can be applied to all aspects of widening participation, tackling chronic under-representation in medical settings. This book will be of great benefit to scholars, researchers, and post-graduate students in the field of medical education, multicultural education, and higher education, as well as those researching the idea of widening participation in the medical field and diversity in the professions more specifically.

Storytelling and Improvisation as Anti-Racist Pedagogies

Challenging White Supremacy in Elementary Education

Samuel Jaye Tanner, Erin T. Miller

This book theorizes and describes the concept of transformative critical whiteness pedagogies that are rooted in theories and practices of improvisation. It shows how these pedagogies invite people, especially white people, into the urgent work of resisting the ongoing production and affirmation of white supremacy.

Implementing Reflective Practice in the K-12 Classroom

How to Easily Structure Teaching and Learning Reflections Into Your Day

Joanna C. Weaver, Cynthia D. Bertelsen

This resource offers teachers a simple framework to seamlessly add reflective practice to their day and encourages educators to critically reflect on instructional planning and practice. Commonly used in other busy professions, the SOAP Notes structure makes it easy to reflect on student progress through any lesson or learning activity, regardless of grade band or content area. Contributors are from diverse teaching backgrounds, schools, and student populations. Ideal for preservice and inservice teachers, administrators, and other education professionals across K-12 settings, this accessible read demonstrates the ease of reflective practice while celebrating teacher voices.

Ludic Inquiries into Power and Pedagogy in Higher Education

How Games Play Us

Edited by Amelia Walker University of South Australia, Australia, Helen Grimmett Monash University, Australia, Alison L. Black University of the Sunshine Coast, Australia

This book interrogates the roles games and playfulness bear in both formal education and informal social learning. Responsive to contemporary social and ecological challenges, this book especially explores games' interactions with social power. Organised across four themes – 'philosophical sparks', 'lived experiences', 'pedagogical perspectives' and 'the spirit of play' – this book emphasises the radical egalitarian possibilities inherent in critical attention to games and how we play (or get played by) them. Its fresh insights will interest all readers interested in creatively remaking our worlds.

Teaching Your First Class

Research for the New Faculty Member

Edited by Bruce D. McDonald III North Carolina State University, USA, William Hatcher Augusta University, USA

Doctoral programs provide training and mentorship for engaging in research, but they rarely provide training on how to be effective in the classroom—leading to many graduates obtaining their first faculty position with little to no teaching. These new faculty need a resource to help them navigate such difficult terrain and be successful teachers. This book was crafted with them in mind and is a straightforward guide for the new instructor in a higher education classroom. It is a highly valuable reading for all those engaged in initial teacher education, professional development, and new faculty. The chapters were originally published in the Journal of Public Affairs Education.

Unlocking the Potential of Relational Pedagogy

Reimagining Teaching, Learning and Policy for Contemporary Schooling

Edited by Stewart Riddle University of Southern Queensland, Australia, Andrew Hickey University of Southern Queensland, Australia

This book is a useful guide for educators who seek to better engage students in rich, meaningful learning, outlining a clear set of key concepts and principles for relational pedagogy in school classrooms. Building on scholarly work and school practices, this book argues that relational pedagogy should be at the centre of teaching and learning in schools, in order to drive positive educational change. Presenting a compelling new framework for relational pedagogy, this book will be of interest to teacher educators, postgraduate students of education, policy and school leaders.

Staying Well Activity Book

Practical Activities to Support Children Aged 7-12 whose Best Friend is Leaving

Claire Holmes

Series: Staying Well

Coping when a friend moves away is hard. This book is designed for children aged 7-12 and is packed full of activities that invite the reader to use their creativity by annotating and illustrating the pages. This makes the book unique to each child, helping them feel a greater sense of agency and control at a time of change. The text acknowledges change is stressful and the child is encouraged to think about their own responses to change and build their coping repertoire. Best introduced 8-weeks before the friend leaves, this is a must-have resource to help children 'stay well'. Grounded in wellbeing and transition research, this activity book contains much wisdom for adults, too.

A New Education for a New Economy: From Human Capital to Human Flourishing

Tal Gilead The Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Israel
Series: Routledge International Studies in the Philosophy of Education

Providing an in-depth, novel analysis of education's role in today's economy by scrutinizing its theoretical underpinnings, this volume critiques the suitability of the current, dominant economic framework for education and for shaping educational policymaking worldwide. Ultimately providing a platform to entirely reconsider the idea that the primary aim of education is to serve the economic system, this book will appeal to scholars, researchers and postgraduate students studying educational policy, the philosophy of education, and the history of education more broadly. Education policymakers and academics studying education and the economy may also find this book of interest.

Education at the Edge of Experience

Navigating the Unassimilable

Marla Morris Georgia Southern University
Series: Studies in Curriculum Theory Series

Presenting a unique exploration of education as "the edge of experience," this book investigates how unassimilable concepts can help reconceptualize education so that we might resolve that which is beyond understanding. Working at the intersection of curriculum theory, philosophy and psychoanalysis, Morris examines how each of these "unassimilable" concepts point toward currere as the edge of experience. Identifying an understanding of our largely social ills and extending William F. Pinar's early work on currere, this book will appeal to curriculum theorists, education philosophers, psychoanalysts, and those with interests in the philosophy and theory of education.

Intelligence, Sapience and Learning

Concepts, Framings and Practices

David Scott University College London, UK, Sandra Leaton Gray University College London, UK
Series: Routledge International Studies in the Philosophy of Education

Examining the idea of intelligence in its diverse sociological and philosophical formations, Intelligence, Sapience and Learning explores the multiple and often complex meanings associated with the concept of intelligence, and its relationships with learning, curriculum and sapience. Scott and Leaton Gray argue for a re-framing of the concept and practice of intelligence, with profound consequences for how modern societies should be organised and how people should live their lives. This book will appeal to curriculum theorists and those with an interest in curriculum and learning matters, as well as those working in the philosophy and sociology of education.

Empowering Play in Primary Education

Edited by Aimee Durning, Sara Baker, Paul Ramchandani

Series: Unlocking Research

The education system does not always promote or give primacy to play within the curriculum, yet research and policy alike acknowledge the importance of play for children and young people. Empowering Play in Primary Education addresses this issue, contributing innovative ideas about how teachers, teaching assistants and children may incorporate play within the classroom while also advocating for its use as a powerful tool for ensuring successful learning outcomes. This is an essential read for any teacher, teaching assistant, headteacher, senior leader or policy maker who wishes to embed more opportunities for play within their curriculum and school.

Listen: How Child and Student Voice Can Change the World

Siobhán Keenan Fitzgerald

Article 12 of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC, 1989) articulates every child's right to have their voice heard in matters that affect them. This vitally important book aims to accelerate acceptance of this right by bridging the gap between theory and practice, empowering adults to act as advocates and facilitators of children using their voices within our homes, schools, and wider communities. An essential read for parents, teachers, teaching assistants and senior leaders, Listen proposes a pedagogical approach to supporting student voice that is backed by current research yet firmly rooted in practical application.

Becoming an Autism-Affirming Primary School

How to Listen to Our Autistic Pupils to Create Meaningful Change

Melanie Cunningham

This accessible guide explores what makes an autism-affirming primary school, introducing a tool to gather pupil voice and sharing a toolbox of practical strategies informed and requested by autistic children themselves. Chapters focus on common themes, from developing a shared, positive understanding of autism within the school, to the classroom environment, hidden support and homework. By identifying simple adjustments to practice, schools can create a more positive experience for autistic children, building self-advocacy and helping to alleviate feelings of anxiety. With quotes from autistic children woven throughout, it is a valuable read for teachers, SENCOs and senior leaders.

Intersectionality and Leading Social Change in Education

Professional Learning to Transform Self, Others, and the Field

Edited by Aubrey H. Wang, Margaret Grogan

This book explores a social change and transformational approach to leadership. As educational leaders are increasingly serving a changing demographic of students and also addressing persistent challenges and heightened tension around race and equity, it's becoming necessary for educators to approach leadership in new and radical ways. This new approach to professional learning helps today's aspiring principals, aspiring superintendents, and practicing administrators learn how intersectional leadership can help them navigate multiple marginalized spaces and codify new notions of power and success.

Leadership Rules: What Leaders Need to Know and Do to Run Great Schools

Jo Facer Michaela School, UK

What do great leaders need to do to run great schools? This exciting new book takes the theory, ideas and vision that so many leaders share, and translates it into the small steps busy school leaders can take that lead to big positive changes. Exploring the three cornerstones of a great education – behaviour, curriculum and teaching – as well as the oft-neglected operations, the book outlines the theory and what best practice looks like in each area and then reveals the leadership actions that enable schools to get there. Full of practical, sustainable ideas to implement in the short and long term, this is essential reading for all leaders in primary and secondary schools.

Mentorship in Higher Education

Edited by Sara R. Rinfret University of Montana, USA, Sarah L. Young Kennesaw State University, USA, Bruce D. McDonald III North Carolina State University, USA

This book explores the theoretical and practical insights into the use of mentorships within higher education. It shows that mentorship matters because it actively encourages faculty to pay it forward, advancing opportunities for students and faculty, focusing on the development of students, and pushing mentors to consider how mentorship can be used to work in a diverse and changing society. The purpose of this book is to help develop the understanding of mentorship, highlight its importance, and hopefully progress the discussion forward with new actions in the field. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Journal of Public Affairs Education.

Rebuilding Support for Higher Education

Practical Strategies for Principled Leaders

Paul L. Gaston

This book provides a palette of practical strategies that higher education leaders—administrators, faculty members, academic advisors, and the like—can apply to the task of rebuilding support. Once closely associated with the common good, higher education is now regarded principally as a benefit for individuals. As a consequence, support for colleges and universities has declined dramatically over the past 50 years, having serious implications for both public and private institutions. Offering a clear-eyed account of this widely lamented issue and innovative approaches for addressing it, this book is essential reading for new, seasoned, and aspiring leaders in higher education.

Strategic Planning for University Colleges and Departments

A Step-by-Step Guide to Developing, Refining, and Implementing Effective Strategy

Jayme L. Renfro

This practical guide contains everything higher education leaders and administrators need to know in order to write simple, effective plans for their colleges and departments. Debunking the traditional notion that intricate, drawn-out planning automatically translates to effective strategy, this book calls for a paradigm shift, urging a move away from mere procedural planning and toward strategic thinking and action. An invaluable resource on writing and maintaining strategic plans for university subunits, this book should have a place on every dean, provost, department head, and program director's shelf.

Metacognition and Study Skills: A Guide for Teachers

Jonathan Firth

Pupils often make poor choices when it comes to independent learning because they don't intuitively understand how to learn. This book reveals how a metacognitive approach to teaching can support pupils and help them overcome the challenges they face with independent learning. Drawing on key research from cognitive science, it explores how metacognition works in practice and argues that it is a complex skill best developed over months and years at school. Full of practical strategies and case studies, this is essential reading for all teachers that want to help their pupils become successful learners in school as well as independent learners for their exam revision and beyond.

The Adventures of Mindy and Mo: Stories to Promote Speech Sound Development

Rebecca Skinner , Emily Kempster , Lucy Cannon

Series: The Adventures of Mindy and Mo

This set comprises 8 entertaining and engaging books which are written with a target sound at their core. The books expose the child to their target sound through natural rhythm and rhyme, enabling children to join in with repeated phrases which include their target sound and also to hear their target sound repeated and spoken accurately by an adult. The stories follow the adventures of two children who are transported by their imaginations to exciting settings in which they encounter a challenge which they help to solve. These books also explore growth mindset, empathy, kindness and resilience. They are the perfect addition to any classroom, SLT toolkit, or bedroom bookcase.

Heart at the Center

An Educator's Guide to Sustaining Love, Hope, and Community Through Nonviolence Pedagogy

Mike Tinoco

In Heart at the Center: An Educator's Guide to Sustaining Love, Hope, and Community through Nonviolence Pedagogy, high school teacher Mike Tinoco examines what it means to reimagine classrooms and schools as spaces that humanize, resist violence and injustice, and center love. Offering both a framework and a set of practices that are grounded in different nonviolence traditions, Heart at the Center asks readers to consider what a pedagogy of nonviolence looks like, sounds like, and feels like in the 6-12 classroom.

Education and Upward Social Mobility in China

Imagining Positive Sociology with Bourdieu

Jin Jin East China Normal University, China

Series: Bourdieu and Education of Asia Pacific

Based on a three-year life story study of students from working-class backgrounds at four elite universities in China, this book offers a new way to understand and be inspired by Bourdieu. It shows how Bourdieu's ideas can be used to go beyond the analysis of domination and imagine a positive sociology of emancipation. This book highlights a relational perspective of understanding class and class struggles, which in turn introduces a relational perspective of (re)imagining reflexivity and transcendence. It will appeal to students and scholars of Bourdieu, sociology of education, and education in China.

The Corporatization of Education

Selected Writings of Kenneth J. Saltman

Kenneth J. Saltman University of Illinois-Chicago

Kenneth J. Saltman is a defining voice within Education, and for 25 years he has worked to uncover the ways in which public education has been impacted by corporatization and neoliberalism, and to demonstrate what educators and citizens can do to reclaim the democratic purpose of schooling. His work is unique in the way that it bridges a number of traditions, theoretical perspectives, and ranges in scope across the discipline, while at the same time translating crucial concepts in an accessible writing style. This important work will be crucial to researchers and graduate students in Education courses.

Towards a Queer and Trans Ethic of Care in Education

Beyond the Limitations of White, Cisheteropatriarchal, Colonial Care

Bishop Owis

Series: Routledge Critical Studies in Gender and Sexuality in Education

Synthesizing conversations from across gender and sexuality education, race and settler-colonialism studies, and care work literature, Towards a Queer and Trans Ethic of Care in Education explores how queer and trans teachers of colour understand and practice care. Owis challenges the embeddedness of white supremacy and settler-colonialism in K-12 classrooms, while offering a framework that can be applied in teaching, research, and personal relationships. This book will appeal to scholars of gender and sexuality studies, race and ethnicity in education, diversity and equity in education, and anyone interested in caring for or with QTBIPOC communities.

10 Mindframes for Visible Learning

Teaching for Success

John Hattie University of Melbourne, Klaus Zierer University of Augsburg, Germany

This new and updated edition of 10 Mindframes for Visible Learning revisits the ten behaviours or mindframes that teachers need to adopt in order to maximize student success. These powerful mindframes, which should underpin every action in schools, are founded on the principle that teachers are evaluators, change agents, learning experts, and seekers of feedback who are constantly engaged with dialogue and challenge. This updated essential guide, which includes questionnaires, scenarios, checklists, and exercises, will show any school exactly how to implement Hattie's mindframes to maximize student success.

Edited by Beverly Levett Gerber , Doris M. Guay , Jane Burnette

Written for art educators, special educators, and those who value the arts for students with special needs, this second edition now combines over 700 years of the educational experience of arts and special educators who share their art lessons, behavior management strategies, and classroom stories. It includes chapters on students with autism spectrum disorder, preschool students, and students experiencing trauma. All chapters have been updated to include current definitions and language, recommended teaching strategies, and art lesson adaptations. Ideal for pre-service arts methods courses and education courses on accessibility and inclusion at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Culturally Responsive and Sustaining Science Teaching

Teacher Research and Investigation from Today's Classrooms

Edited by Elaine V. Howes, Jamie Wallace

In this practical resource, teacher researchers from the Culturally Responsive and Sustaining Education Professional Learning Group based in New York City provide insights for educators on how to address complex educational and socio-cultural issues in the science classroom. Highlighting wide-ranging and complex problems such as the COVID-19 pandemic and racial injustice and how they affect individual science instruction settings, chapters examine and describe what CRSE is and means for science teaching. This book is ideal for pre-service and in-service science teachers and teacher educators across grade levels.

Living Educational Theory Research as an Epistemology for Practice

The Role of Values in Practitioners' Professional Development

Jack Whitehead Visiting Professor, UK, Marie Huxtable

Series: Routledge Research in Education

This book explores a value-based research methodology, Living Educational Theory Research (LETR), which aligns a values-based approach with key tenets of professional development to inform and inspire future educators' practice. Demonstrating how insights from disciplines such as philosophy, sociology, and psychology are integrated within the generation of living-educational-theories, this outwardly looking volume will appeal to postgraduate students, scholars, and researchers involved with educational theory, action research and other forms of practitioner research, and education research methods more broadly.

Designing Learning with Digital Technologies

Perspectives from Multimodality in Education

Edited by Fei Victor Lim National Institute of Education, Singapore, Mercedes Querol-Julián Universidad Internacional de La Rioja, Spain

Series: Routledge Research in Digital Education and Educational Technology

This book draws out the educational implications of digital technologies in teaching and learning through a discussion of their multimodal features and a reflection on the ways they can be used in the designs for learning. Essential reading for researchers and postgraduate students, this book offers state-of-the-art thinking on how educators can design new learning experiences for students through the meaningful and effective use of digital technologies.

Improving Equity in Data Science

Re-Imagining the Teaching and Learning of Data in K-16 Classrooms

Edited by Colby Tofel-Grehl, Emmanuel Schanzer

This book offers a comprehensive look at the ways in which data science can be conceptualized and engaged more equitably within the K-16 classroom setting. It makes the case for field wide definitions and learning that can be commonly discussed and used, and provides examples from research of these practices in action. Practitioners and teacher educators will be able to answer the question, "how can data science serve to move equity efforts in computing beyond basic inclusion to empowerment?" whether the goal is to simply improve approaches to research on data science or support teachers of data science in creating more equitable and inclusive environments within their classrooms.
